DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CONVENTION OPENS

ATMOSPHERE OF UNCERTAINTY IN PROCEEDINGS

MINORITY REPORTS PROBABLE ON MAJOR ISSUES OF DAY

MUCH BITTER FEELING AROUSED ON THE KLAN ISSUE

(By United Press)

Today's Program

National Chairman Hull calls convention to order at noon, eastern daylight saving time.
Invocation by Cardinal Hayes.
Singing of the Star Spangled Banner.
Reading of the convention call.
Election of temporary officers.
Address of Senator Pat Harrison, temporary chairman.
Adoption of parliamentary rules for the convention.
Confirmation of various committees.
Optional speeches.
Resolution of respect in memory of Woodrow Wilson.
Adjournment.

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 24.—Many famous fights and many circuses have been held in the historic building, but none of them have matched the combination of both that began here today with the opening of the democratic national convention.

"Fair and cool" was the official convention weather forecast for New York City, but "high temperatures and storms" was the unmistakable outlook for the actual convention area.

Through the garden stalked the troublesome issues of the Ku Klux Klan, League of Nations, prohibition—and in the background the impending fight between the men who aspire to lead the party in the coming campaign.

At their headquarters, temporarily out of the stirring picture of action in the convention, the leading candidates for the presidential nomination await their turn. But on the platform here and out among the delegates are such figures as Newton D. Baker, William Jennings Bryan, Senator Royal Copeland, Governor Albert Richie of Maryland and many others whom the presidential lightning may strike before this quadrennial session ends.

On most of the major issues before the delegates there are likely to be minority reports from the resolutions committee, resulting in prolonged debate from the floor. What speaker may stampede the convention during his address on one of these and lay the foundation stones for his own nomination after those formally presented have run their race? What issue will emerge at last as the great one upon which the nominee must face the electorate this fall?

Never before has a democratic convention met in an atmosphere of such uncertainty and surcharged with such bitterness and dangers as marks this one.

Newton D. Baker, delegate from Ohio and assigned to the resolutions committee from that state assumes the direction of the anti-McAdoo campaign with his demands for a league plank in the platform. Such is his feeling on the subject that, should the resolutions committee refuse to countenance a league plank, he might through a minority report carry the issue out upon the convention floor. There he would address the convention as a whole.

Baker, too, supports a strong anti-Klan plank—one as virile as those drafted by E. H. Moore of Ohio and Senator Underwood of Alabama.

With Baker aligned with this element, the Klan issue appears more and more likely to dominate convention delegations and possibly emerge as the foremost issue of the democratic party in the coming campaign.

Such is the bitterness of the majority of the delegates here on the subject that some of the foremost leaders in the party are now claiming that the Klan would furnish the party the best talking point available this year, would assure the vote of thousands of republicans and would materially cut into the strength of Senator Robert M. LaFollette's independent candidacy in the rural sections, where the Klan is strong.

Early in the day a cordon of police was thrown around the section in which the garden stands and an entrance zone was established into which none could go without a ticket or other satisfactory credentials. The garden itself was flanked on all sides by hundreds of police to prevent any attempted rush of the doors.

As early as 10:30 people began to troop to the entrances.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION BATTLE IS NOW ON

Madison Square Garden, New York June 24—The democratic convention battle of 1924 is on.

With temperature around 90 degrees and in an atmosphere of still higher tension, Cordell Hull, chairman of the democratic national committee, called the convention to order at 12:44 o'clock and what promised to be the most memorable session in party history got under way.

It required several moments for Hull to get order, and then he introduced Cardinal Hayes to give the invocation.

Hayes prayed for a benediction upon this country.

Particularly at this solemn moment, he said, these distinguished representatives, charged with the responsibility of selecting a candidate to lead their country, required God's guidance.

The convention, he said, should select a candidate "whose mind, heart and soul were filled with the spirit of patriotic love and service."

He asked that hte Almighty continue to bless this country as "the happiest of people, with the wisest of rulers and the best of government."

"O Father, Thy wisdom and justice has been showered upon this nation in self-government and has brought into being a wonderful land.

"Give us, O Father, charity toward all and malice toward none, that righteousness, justice and mercy may triumph forever."

He added the wish that all might love and serve America with unaltered loyalty.

Cardinal Hayes concluded with recitation of the Lord's Prayer.

When Hayes finished, the band struck up the Star Spangled Banner. Tiny American and New York state

INDICTMENT ACTION HAS BEEN DEFERRED TO MONDAY

Washington, June 24.—Action on indictments sought by the government in connection with the leasing of the naval oil reserves today was deferred by the special grand jury hearing the evidence here until next Monday.

FORD CO. VICTORS IN $627,000 SUIT

HUTCHINS CO. LOSES ACTION IN ST. PAUL COURT—APPEAL PLANNED

St. Paul, June 24.—Judge W. A. Cant yesterday directed a verdict in favor of the Ford Motor Co. in the $627,000 suit brought by the W. J. Hutchins Co.

The evidence, the court held in refusing to let a jury consider the case, showed no cause of action, in that no contract covered the so-called damages claimed by the Hutchins Co.

These alleged damages, the court said, were based on points not covered in the contract, while the contract itself was revokable at any time by either of the parties.

The Hutchins Co., at one time Ford and Fordson dealers in St. Paul for the northwest, claimed to have lost $127,000 when the Ford Motor Co. revoked its contract. It also claimed $500,000 as lost profits.

The decision, William Oppenheimer, counsel for the Hutchins Co. said will be appealed. Judge Cant granted him 30 days in which to prepare his request for an appeal.

ALWAYS NERVY CUSS, SAID LIEUTENANT'S DAD

Minneapolis, June 24.—Lieut. Russell Maughan was "always a nervy cuss," his father, George E. Maughan, said today.

"Once in a storm he refused a two-mile lift to school in a sleigh just because he liked to battle the drifts," he said, describing the aviator's "inherent courage."

And the father's statement today breaks a long silence between the two. The dawn to dark flight of the sun may bring them together again.

Referring to his son, the father said he was born at Morris, Minn., and graduated from high school there. The father was making just a modest living at his lifelong trade of carpentry and when he was 21 Russell struck out for himself so "he wouldn't be in the way."

After that they saw little of each other. Russell taught school in North Dakota, took civil service examinations and in 1917 joined the navy. After the war he joined the government weather service, and then the father moved to Montana and lost track of the boy.

Fearing publicity, keeping grimly to himself as he battled to live, George E. Maughan reached the age of 64 and told no one of their relation until today. He watched the first and second attempts of his boy to cross the continent, and today when the third attempt was successful he spoke for the first time.

It is strange to think that the great men of the next decade are struggling unrecognized.—Zangwill.

FLEETER THAN THE SUN ITSELF, DAWN-DUSK FLIER

LIEUTENANT RUSSELL MAUGHAN MAKES SUCCESSFUL FLIGHT

WINGED WAY IN DAYLIGHT, NEW YORK TO SAN FRANCISCO

(By United Press)

San Francisco, June 24.—Fleeter almost than the sun itself, Lieut. Russell Maughan flew by daylight from New York to San Francisco, and the dream of American airmen of a dawn to dusk transcontinental flight became a reality.

A new era of aviation has been opened up by the courageous and successful venture, army and civilian flying men declared today as congratulations were showered upon the army officer who left Mitchell Field, New York, at 3:59 eastern standard time and arrived at San Francisco 21 hours and 45 minutes later.

What army men visualize is a fleet of airplanes on one coast called by wire or wireless to defend the other and spanning the entire United States within a single day.

It was past dusk when Maughan's record flight came to an end at Crissey Field, but airmen pointed out that he had delayed at dawn and that the sun was up 37 minutes before the little plane hummed off into the west, and that the flight actually ended 18 minutes ahead of schedule.

Maughan was "air sick" a couple of dozen times during his flight between the time he left New York and his arrival here.

Face windburned, eyes flaming, red-rimmed and sunken and bloodshot, hands trembling with sheer fatigue, the airman was bundled off to bed after he had sketched an unromantic word picture of his epoch-making flight.

"In the mountain country we made 140 miles an hour. Over level country faster time—better than 150 miles an hour, I think.'

"We?" someone asked.

"Me and my plane.

"For the first 200 miles the weather was fine. Then for 150 miles we drove through rain. Then came 100 miles of fog. After that we had low-hanging clouds all the way."

CHINESE RIVER ON RAMPAGE; MANY DROWNED IN FLOOD

(By United Press)

Shanghai, June 24.—Many people have been drowned and property already damaged thousands of dollars by the most disastrous flood in the history of the Min river, according to advices here today.

The city of Fuchow, a treaty port and capital of the province of Fokien, 35 miles up the Min from its mouth, is three-fourths under water. The entire warehouse district is submerged.

Shipping is menaced by log rafts of timber companies, which are being swirled down by the flood.

It is feared here that the loss of life in Fuchow probably is very heavy. Floods in the past have claimed thousands of victims along the river Min. Fuchow has a population of 800,000 and is one of the rich cities of South China.

$20,000 DEATH THREAT LETTER INVESTIGATED

MISSIVE RECEIVED BY EDWARD HINES, MILLIONAIRE LUMBERMAN

CHICAGO MAN ORDERED TO PLANT MONEY IN CINDER PILE

(By United Press)

Chicago, June 24.—Authorities today were investigating a $20,000 "death threat" letter received by Edward Hines, millionaire lumberman, the latest of a series of threatening missives received in Chicago's millionaire colony.

The letter received by Hines, which was well written, was signed a "heart sick" man. It ordered Hines to plant the $20,000 in a cinder pile. The money was to be in $5, $10 and $20 bills.

"I have tried out my revolver," the letter warned. "It is working well, and I will kill you if you don't do as I say. I am dying of tuberculosis and have only 40 days to live. My room is a prison, so what's the difference?"

SHIPWRECKED WOMAN DEMANDS SUITE ON RESCUE FREIGHTER

Balboa, C. I., June 24—The lady who when rescued from a ship wreck and taken aboard a freighter demanded a suite on the latter because she had paid for one on the wrecked steamer, furnished perhaps the most amusing incident of the Pacific Mail liner Columbia, Los Angeles to New York, which went aground Saturday on Cuna island, 300 miles from here.

This story and others, including one of the fortunate survival of a destined-to-be-immortal work on mah jongg were brought here by 97 passengers of the grounded liner when the transport Chaumont arrived. The Chaumont and two other vessels "rescued" the Columbia's passengers.

There were no casualties, not even a bump.

BUCK AND WING DANCER CLOGS HIS WAY TO FREEDOM

St. Paul, June 24.—"Jedge, I'm the best little buck and wing colored dancer in the country."

This was the shy admission of George Brown, colored, who appeared in police court on the charge of drunkenness, when questioned as to his means of livelihood.

"Well, George, if we were not so rushed for time the court would ask for a demonstration," laughed Judge Finehout. "Now you had better buck and wing out to the carnival grounds. Don't tangle up with moonshine for you get too many complicated steps. Dismissed."

ATTENDANCE IS RECORD ONE MONDAY

LOCAL CHAUTAUQUA BOARD IS PRAISED FOR WORK DONE

LOUIS WILLIAMS, ELECTRICAL ENTERTAINER, OFFERED OPENING NUMBER

Brainerd's Chautauqua season of June 23 to 27 inclusive, opened last night at the New Park Theatre with a record attendance, and a real Chautauqua spirit. Due to the concentrated efforts and systematic supervision of the local Chautauqua board every method of publicity and ticket selling was carried out most effectively and the results of their plans materialized in the splendid attendance which filled the whole main floor of the spacious theatre and crowded well into the galleries.

Dr. W. H. Beachler of Waterloo, Iowa, is platform manager and comes to the city with a broad Chautauqua experience. Under his leadership the Waterloo Chautauqua has become one of the largest and strongest Independent Chautauquas in the state of Iowa. His co-operation is freely accorded and will further add to the success of the Brainerd Chautauqua.

The program offered by Louis Williams, electrical entertainer, the opening number of the Chautauqua, was most pleasing as well as very instructive. Mr. Williams uses no technical terms, but gets down to plain, every day language and his running talk and comment contributes greatly to the amusement and enlightenment of the audience.

His exposition of "The Wonders of Electricity" reviewed this force in every possible stage of development from chemical action to wireless. One of his most startling feats was using two men of the audience as part of his power line, having them join hands and holding wire and lamp and thus forming a human arc light, and illuminating a 110 kilowatt lamp. An evening spent with Mr. Williams makes it apparent why his services are sought by universities as well as lyceum bureaus and chautauquas.

Today's Programs

Today's afternoon and evening programs feature the C. Magnus Schutz concert company and Dr. Henry Gaines Hawn. A point to be remembered by all audiences is that when afternoon and evening performances include the same people, that the performances offer entirely new material. There is no repetition. That's why the afternoon performances are not matinees. Each is a completely new offering.

The C. Magnus Schutz concert company will feature its mixed quartet numbers at the afternoon performance starting at 2:30 o'clock. In the evening at 7:45 o'clock the company gives an entire change of program and will present an unusual combination of splendid voices.

Dr. Henry Gaines Hawn of New York city gives a dramatic recital at 3:30 P. M. and at 8:45 o'clock in the evening, presents new material in the form of his famous address on "The Soul of Things." He is known as a great civic evangelist who has made a thorough study of civic problems.

At noon today he was an honored guest of the Brainerd Rotary club and spoke 30 minutes at the luncheon.

Wednesday's Program

Wednesday, June 25, brings to Brainerd the Cappy Ricks company, which at 3 o'clock will present "The Bubble," a clever comedy of sudden anticipated wealth that did not materialize, and at 7:45 o'clock in the evening will present "Cappy Ricks," an outstanding Broadway success, a play of quaint character types and delightful humor.

With the fine stage and curtain facilities of the theatre this company will be able to do their very best. With such a strong company, the sale of single admissions tomorrow ought to reach high water mark of the entire season. Nobody should miss the Cappy Ricks company.

TRANSCONTINENTAL AIR MAIL SOON TO BE INAUGURATED

(By United Press)

Chicago, June 24.—The postal air mail service, about to inaugurate a day and night transcontinental delivery, has left the field of romance and is making a bid for the patronage of business men, Paul Henderson, second assistant postmaster general, said here today. Present plans call for day and night service to start July 1.

BONUS BLANKS ON HAND IN ST. PAUL

ST. PAUL VETERANS MAY MAKE APPLICATIONS AT LEGION OFFICES

St. Paul, June 24.—Today's the big day for St. Paul World war veterans.

Equipment to take fingerprints, as required, is on hand. Discharges are not required, but veterans are advised to refer to their discharges for information required in the applications, and time may be saved by bringing them.

Applications must be in by Jan. 1, 1928. Veterans need not try to calculate the amount of insurance they are to get; the government will do that. All they need to tell is the facts regarding their length of service, and how it was served.

Each application must be witnessed by two persons who know the veteran and the fact of his service. Dependants or guardians of diseased veterans may make applications.

Those not eligible include those who were not in military service during the actual war period before the armistice or for more than 60 days: those dishonorably discharged, conscientious objectors who stuck to their objections; those discharged because aliens, and welfare workers. Conscientious objectors who served regardless of their principles, are eligible.

Other veterans' organizations and service recruiting stations are to be provided with application facilities later.

Bonus blanks have been sent out to all known marines in the St. Paul district, Capt. J. M. Tildsley, in charge of the St. Paul office, announced this morning.

Addresses of many of the marines have been changed since the office made up its list, however, and some may not get their blanks. Blanks may be obtained at 203 Baltimore building, the marine office.

Teachers of Farming Plan Study Courses and Judge Livestock

Nearly 50 teachers of agriculture in Minnesota high schools have just spent a week at University Farm to plan a uniform course of study with the help of officials of the state department of education and the division of agricultural education of the state university. Speakers from the outside were A. K. Getman, the state supervisor for agricultural education in New York, and A. P. Williams of the federal board of vocational education. A banquet was held one evening with addresses by Eugene M. Phillips, the Minnesota state director of vocational education, and Dean M. E. Haggerty of the Minnesota College of Education.

A feature of the week's course was a livestock judging contest held for the teachers at University Farm. Lyle Churchill of Truman, Blue Earth county, won the highest award Mr. Churchill scored 530 points out of a possible 610. H. A. Hass of Pipestone, who was second, scored 528½ points. The average for all the men who took part was 477.3 points.

Delmar LaVoi of Crookston, now teaching the agricultural course in Lamberton high, won the swine judging contest. H. J. Robertson of Olivia was first in horses and dairy cattle. Mr. Churchill was first in beef cattle. Mr. Churchill was awarded a gold medal for his performance and the others silver medals, all the trophies being given by the Webb Publishing company of St. Paul.

MILLIONAIRE IS SENTENCED TO 2 YEARS IN PRISON

H. H. BIGELOW, ST. PAUL ADVERTISING MAN, ALSO FINED $10,000

PLEAD GUILTY TO ATTEMPT TO DEFRAUD ON INCOME TAX RETURNS

(By United Press)

St. Paul, June 24.—H. H. Bigelow, millionaire president of Brown & Bigelow, St. Paul advertising concern, was today sentenced to two years in Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $10,000 in Federal court when he pleaded guilty to attempting to defraud the government of income tax returns.

In addition two other officials of the company and the concern itself were fined a total of $30,000. Officers also made a promise to pay the $148,000 in taxes over which the case was started.

R. P. Galloway was fined $10,000, as was W. Priester, officials of the company, and the firm itself was fined $10,000.

FRANKS CASE LESSON TO PARENTS —DR. COVERT

(By United Press)

Philadelphia, June 24.—Busy parents, who have not time to properly care for their children are responsible for the Leopold-Loeb-Franks case in Chicago, according to Dr. Wm. C. Covert, general secretary of Christian Education of the Presbyterian church. Covert lives in Philadelphia.

"I know the parents of the Leopold and Loeb boys and they are seemingly fine people," Dr. Covert said, in discussing the case. 'They are intelligent, but they were too busy to attend to their sons' education. Therein lies the answer.

"An educated person without character is a menace. He has no moral direction to his life, nothing to guide him in the right way and consequently is self-indulgent and anti-social.

"A man who has no moral education comes pretty close to the jungle. He reverts to the rule of the beast and there you have the cause for this crime in Chicago. There you have the difficulty with Leopold and Loeb. Both boys were intelligent, both had everything that money would buy, but they were lacking in something far more precious—moral stability.

"My son was a councillor in a camp in Wisconsin which Loeb attended. He knew him as only persons who have lived in the open together can know each other. Loeb at that time was a healthy, normal boy, inclined to be mischievous, but not vicious. He grew older and his brain developed, but he had no restraint placed upon his normally active thoughts. Consequently he took the path the results of which is known all over the world.

"There is no question of sanity in this case. Both boys are admittedly brilliant, but they have not schooled themselves to restraint. They followed their impulses, regardless of where it led them.

"The biggest necessity in the world today is the arousing in American parents a consciousness of their responsibility to their children. When this is done there will be fewer cases of juvenile delinquency and the world will be a better place to live in.'

Balboa, C. I., June 24—The lady who when rescued from a ship wreck and taken aboard a freighter demanded a suite on the latter because she had paid for one on the wrecked steamer, furnished perhaps the most amusing incident of the Pacific Mail liner Columbia, Los Angeles to New York, which went aground Saturday on Cuna island, 300 miles from here.

This story and others, including one of the fortunate survival of a destined-to-be-immortal work on mah jongg were brought here by 97 passengers of the grounded liner when the transport Chaumont arrived. The Chaumont and two other vessels "rescued" the Columbia's passengers.

There were no casualties, not even a bump.

BUCK AND WING DANCER CLOGS HIS WAY TO FREEDOM

St. Paul, June 24.—"Jedge, I'm the best little buck and wing colored dancer in the country."

This was the shy admission of George Brown, colored, who appeared in police court on the charge of drunkenness, when questioned as to his means of livelihood.

"Well, George, if we were not so rushed for time the court would ask for a demonstration," laughed Judge Finehout. "Now you had better buck and wing out to the carnival grounds. Don't tangle up with moonshine for you get too many complicated steps. Dismissed."

ATTENDANCE IS RECORD ONE MONDAY

LOCAL CHAUTAUQUA BOARD IS PRAISED FOR WORK DONE

LOUIS WILLIAMS, ELECTRICAL ENTERTAINER, OFFERED OPENING NUMBER

Brainerd's Chautauqua season of June 23 to 27 inclusive, opened last night at the New Park Theatre with a record attendance, and a real Chautauqua spirit. Due to the concentrated efforts and systematic supervision of the local Chautauqua board every method of publicity and ticket selling was carried out most effectively and the results of their plans materialized in the splendid attendance which filled the whole main floor of the spacious theatre and crowded well into the galleries.

Dr. W. H. Beachler of Waterloo, Iowa, is platform manager and comes to the city with a broad Chautauqua experience. Under his leadership the Waterloo Chautauqua has become one of the largest and strongest Independent Chautauquas in the state of Iowa. His co-operation is freely accorded and will further add to the success of the Brainerd Chautauqua.

The program offered by Louis Williams, electrical entertainer, the opening number of the Chautauqua, was most pleasing as well as very instructive. Mr. Williams uses no technical terms, but gets down to plain, every day language and his running talk and comment contributes greatly to the amusement and enlightenment of the audience.

His exposition of "The Wonders of Electricity" reviewed this force in every possible stage of development from chemical action to wireless. One of his most startling feats was using two men of the audience as part of his power line, having them join hands and holding wire and lamp and thus forming a human arc light, and illuminating a 110 kilowatt lamp. An evening spent with Mr. Williams makes it apparent why his services are sought by universities as well as lyceum bureaus and chautauquas.

Today's Programs

Today's afternoon and evening programs feature the C. Magnus Schutz concert company and Dr. Henry Gaines Hawn. A point to be remembered by all audiences is that when afternoon and evening performances include the same people, that the performances offer entirely new material. There is no repetition. That's why the afternoon performances are not matinees. Each is a completely new offering.

The C. Magnus Schutz concert company will feature its mixed quartet numbers at the afternoon performance starting at 2:30 o'clock. In the evening at 7:45 o'clock the company gives an entire change of program and will present an unusual combination of splendid voices.

Dr. Henry Gaines Hawn of New York city gives a dramatic recital at 3:30 P. M. and at 8:45 o'clock in the evening, presents new material in the form of his famous address on "The Soul of Things." He is known as a great civic evangelist who has made a thorough study of civic problems.

At noon today he was an honored guest of the Brainerd Rotary club and spoke 30 minutes at the luncheon.

Wednesday's Program

Wednesday, June 25, brings to Brainerd the Cappy Ricks company, which at 3 o'clock will present "The Bubble," a clever comedy of sudden anticipated wealth that did not materialize, and at 7:45 o'clock in the evening will present "Cappy Ricks," an outstanding Broadway success, a play of quaint character types and delightful humor.

With the fine stage and curtain facilities of the theatre this company will be able to do their very best. With such a strong company, the sale of single admissions tomorrow ought to reach high water mark of the entire season. Nobody should miss the Cappy Ricks company.

TRANSCONTINENTAL AIR MAIL SOON TO BE INAUGURATED

(By United Press)

Chicago, June 24.—The postal air mail service, about to inaugurate a day and night transcontinental delivery, has left the field of romance and is making a bid for the patronage of business men, Paul Henderson, second assistant postmaster general, said here today. Present plans call for day and night service to start July 1.

BONUS BLANKS ON HAND IN ST. PAUL

ST. PAUL VETERANS MAY MAKE APPLICATIONS AT LEGION OFFICES

St. Paul, June 24.—Today's the big day for St. Paul World war veterans.

Equipment to take fingerprints, as required, is on hand. Discharges are not required, but veterans are advised to refer to their discharges for information required in the applications, and time may be saved by bringing them.

Applications must be in by Jan. 1, 1928. Veterans need not try to calculate the amount of insurance they are to get; the government will do that. All they need to tell is the facts regarding their length of service, and how it was served.

Each application must be witnessed by two persons who know the veteran and the fact of his service. Dependants or guardians of diseased veterans may make applications.

Those not eligible include those who were not in military service during the actual war period before the armistice or for more than 60 days: those dishonorably discharged, conscientious objectors who stuck to their objections; those discharged because aliens, and welfare workers. Conscientious objectors who served regardless of their principles, are eligible.

Other veterans' organizations and service recruiting stations are to be provided with application facilities later.

Bonus blanks have been sent out to all known marines in the St. Paul district, Capt. J. M. Tildsley, in charge of the St. Paul office, announced this morning.

Addresses of many of the marines have been changed since the office made up its list, however, and some may not get their blanks. Blanks may be obtained at 203 Baltimore building, the marine office.

Teachers of Farming Plan Study Courses and Judge Livestock

Nearly 50 teachers of agriculture in Minnesota high schools have just spent a week at University Farm to plan a uniform course of study with the help of officials of the state department of education and the division of agricultural education of the state university. Speakers from the outside were A. K. Getman, the state supervisor for agricultural education in New York, and A. P. Williams of the federal board of vocational education. A banquet was held one evening with addresses by Eugene M. Phillips, the Minnesota state director of vocational education, and Dean M. E. Haggerty of the Minnesota College of Education.

A feature of the week's course was a livestock judging contest held for the teachers at University Farm. Lyle Churchill of Truman, Blue Earth county, won the highest award Mr. Churchill scored 530 points out of a possible 610. H. A. Hass of Pipestone, who was second, scored 528½ points. The average for all the men who took part was 477.3 points.

Delmar LaVoi of Crookston, now teaching the agricultural course in Lamberton high, won the swine judging contest. H. J. Robertson of Olivia was first in horses and dairy cattle. Mr. Churchill was first in beef cattle. Mr. Churchill was awarded a gold medal for his performance and the others silver medals, all the trophies being given by the Webb Publishing company of St. Paul.

MILLIONAIRE IS SENTENCED TO 2 YEARS IN PRISON

H. H. BIGELOW, ST. PAUL ADVERTISING MAN, ALSO FINED $10,000

PLEAD GUILTY TO ATTEMPT TO DEFRAUD ON INCOME TAX RETURNS

(By United Press)

St. Paul, June 24.—H. H. Bigelow, millionaire president of Brown & Bigelow, St. Paul advertising concern, was today sentenced to two years in Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $10,000 in Federal court when he pleaded guilty to attempting to defraud the government of income tax returns.

In addition two other officials of the company and the concern itself were fined a total of $30,000. Officers also made a promise to pay the $148,000 in taxes over which the case was started.

R. P. Galloway was fined $10,000, as was W. Priester, officials of the company, and the firm itself was fined $10,000.

FRANKS CASE LESSON TO PARENTS —DR. COVERT

(By United Press)

Philadelphia, June 24.—Busy parents, who have not time to properly care for their children are responsible for the Leopold-Loeb-Franks case in Chicago, according to Dr. Wm. C. Covert, general secretary of Christian Education of the Presbyterian church. Covert lives in Philadelphia.

"I know the parents of the Leopold and Loeb boys and they are seemingly fine people," Dr. Covert said, in discussing the case. 'They are intelligent, but they were too busy to attend to their sons' education. Therein lies the answer.

"An educated person without character is a menace. He has no moral direction to his life, nothing to guide him in the right way and consequently is self-indulgent and anti-social.

"A man who has no moral education comes pretty close to the jungle. He reverts to the rule of the beast and there you have the cause for this crime in Chicago. There you have the difficulty with Leopold and Loeb. Both boys were intelligent, both had everything that money would buy, but they were lacking in something far more precious—moral stability.

"My son was a councillor in a camp in Wisconsin which Loeb attended. He knew him as only persons who have lived in the open together can know each other. Loeb at that time was a healthy, normal boy, inclined to be mischievous, but not vicious. He grew older and his brain developed, but he had no restraint placed upon his normally active thoughts. Consequently he took the path the results of which is known all over the world.

"There is no question of sanity in this case. Both boys are admittedly brilliant, but they have not schooled themselves to restraint. They followed their impulses, regardless of where it led them.

"The biggest necessity in the world today is the arousing in American parents a consciousness of their responsibility to their children. When this is done there will be fewer cases of juvenile delinquency and the world will be a better place to live in.'

Small Charge For Accomodations Now Being Made at Tourist Park

GILL KEEN IS CARETAKER

New Equipment Added is Laundry Building Near Caretaker's Home

About eight hundred tourists have taken advantage of Brainerd's popular camp grounds so far this month, bringing in a revenue of about $100, according to the records of Gill Keen the caretaker at the camp.

This is about as many visitors as were accomodated during the same period last year, when the camp facilities were free. The small charge to cover overhead expense that is made this season, seems to make very little difference in the number of tourists who stop at the camp. A few refuse to pay the small charge, and camp elsewhere, says Mr. Keen, but those who do stop seem to be of the best class of people, with the result that there is much less trouble in serving them than was experienced last year.

With hardly an exception, the visitors are more than pleased with the accomodations, and speak very highly of the camp and its caretaker. These people are doing much to advertise the "Brainerd Way" of entertaining the tourists, who are coming in increasing numbers daily.

One of the improvements being added to the equipment this year is a laundry, now under construction. This is being built on the west side of the caretaker's house, and will be fitted with three or four tubs, wringers, washboards, etc., and is about the last word in fittings for a tourist camp such as this.

About sixty visitors were accomodated at the camp on Monday. The list as taken from the register follows:

REAL PENSION PLAN URGED BY RELIEF BOARD FOR PRESBYTERIANS

(By United Press)

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 24.—The sixty-ninth annual report of the Presbyterian Board of Relief and Sustentation was presented to the Presbyterian General Assembly today.

Dr. Henry B. Master, general secretary, stated that the past year had been the best financially the board had ever known, with a total of $681,000 distributed in pensions during the year. Dr. Master held, however, that the pension system was pathetically inadequate, and he held that the honor of the church was at stake to secure some remedy for the situation. He urged that some radically different plan must be devised and that the church must enable the board to plan for the future.

Dr. Master emphasized the idea that pensions for aged and disabled ministers and other servants of the church were not a matter of charity but instead, of simple justice. He reported that there was a shortage of more than $2,000,000 in the reserve fund of the sustentation department, due to the failure of the church to match through its benevolent contributions the payment of each $1 by the members of the sustentation department by the payment of $4 which the church had agreed to do. This deficit, said Dr. Master, was now increasing at the rate of between $300,000 and $400,000 per year.

The average number of pension applications was formerly 100 per year but for the year 1922-23 the number of aplications granted was 217, and for the year just ended it was 206.

An Adequate Pension

In urging reform of the pension system Dr. Master held that any pension system worthy of the name must be extended to cover all the servants of the church, ministers, missionaries and commissioned lay workers. Moreover, he said, this pension ought to be an adequate one, affording a reasonable measure of comfort and freedom from grinding poverty in old age or disability. He said that the situation today was appalling. On the basis of salary paid, he said, few ministers were able to make sufficient provision for declining years.

Dr. Master said that the benefits desired might be secured by the payment by the minister of 2½ per cent of his annual salary and the payment by the church which he serves of 7½ per cent of the amount of his salary.

Dr. Master added that the whole matter of the proposed new pension plan would be covered in detail when the special Layman's Committee should present its report through its chairman, Hon. Will H. Hays, head of the motion picture industry and Presbyterian elder from Sullivan, Ind. Hays' committee not only asks for $15,000,000 additional endowment, but it is also making a survey of the church and a study of ministers' salaries with a view to establishing a pension system on a scientific basis.

A Little Careless

"What do you know of the character of the defendant?" asked the judge of a colored laundress subpoenaed in an accident case of a white man arrested for careless driving of a motorcar.

"It's tolerable," Maria said.

"Had you seen him drive the car before?"

"Yassah."

"Would you consider him careless?"

"Well, jedge, as fo' de car—dat little thing ain't gwine to hurt nobody, but being us is all here, I might as well tell yo' dat he sho' is careless 'bout payin' fo' his wash!"

California Cork Trees

It is said that within the past decade cork culture has shown promise of becoming one of the important industries of California. A considerable acreage of Spanish cork oak is now in cultivation at the forest plantation owned by the University of California, and all of the trees are, it is said, thriving and growing vigorously. On the elder trees there is a good growth of young bark, some of it more than an inch in thickness.

Most of the trees are now about seven years old and are from twenty-five to thirty feet in height and from eight to ten inches in diameter at the butts. This culture has been made in ordinary soil. Both the climate and soil seem very favorable to the growth of the Spanish cork oak.

This is the first time that any attempt has been made to grow cork in California and the experiment seems to have been worth making.

A Serious Case

A notoriously absent-minded man was observed walking down the street with one foot continually in the gutter, the other on the pavement. A friend meeting him said: "Good evening. How are you?"

"Well," replied the absent-minded one. "I thought I was very well when I left home, but now I don't know what's the matter with me. I've been limping for the last half hour."

"Then you had better asthma," she lisped softly.

Safety of Banks

National banks are chartered by the federal government and are subject to supervision by the comptroller of the currency, who has authority to close a bank if his examiner finds that it has impaired its capital. State banks and trust companies operate under the authority of the state and are subject to supervision by the state bank commissioner, just as national banks are supervised by the federal comptroller of the currency. Periodical examinations of both classes of banks are made. If undesirable securities are found or unsafe methods of business are disclosed, the bank commissioner or the comptroller, as the case may be, generally gives directors and stockholders an opportunity to correct abuses and make good on poor securities before taking the more drastic action of closing the bank. Generally speaking, there is no difference in the safety of state and national banks.

A COMMUNITY AFFAIR

THE Chautauqua was first organized as a tent affair where those who loved good intellectual feasts and good music gathered and camped and enjoyed these features together with fine fellowship for the season.

The coming of the auto destroyed the camping feature, but the main features of the Chautauqua were so excellent that they have been adapted to our present day mode of transportation. There is a growing tendency to hold these programs in buildings where the accommodations are better and instead of being held at some camp ground they are made a community affair. Many folks who are unable to attend but one or two sessions buy season tickets that the Chautauqua may be available to a large number.

Brainerd Chautauqua was started last year and grew in favor with each program rendered. It bids fair to being a splendid community affair this year, as it is having the support of folks in every walk of life.

THE CRUX OF THE PROBLEM

IN an address made at Harvard university commencement exercises, Dr. William J. Mayo of Rochester, gave this summarizing of political conditions which will bear much thought:

The only people, under our form of government, who vote solidly and persistently are the discontented and the dissatisfied who, although in the minority, control the government because the satisfied do not take the trouble to vote.

Here is the crux of the problem, a reversion of the traditional caste system. The new caste is from below and depends on predjudice for its maintenance. The university man, therefore, unfortunately has relatively small political influence. His leadership is not often desired by the steadily voting blocs, and the upper classes, composed of better trained men, are individualized beyond the possibility of effective organization. Their many theories break them up into such small groups that their vote, which should at least be intelligent, is politically of small moment.

TROMMALD TIMES HAS BIRTHDAY

WE tender congratulations to the Trommald Times. On Saturday, June 21, marking the advent of summer and the longest day in the year, the Trommald Times also celebrated its sixth birthday.

Editor A. H. Carlisle has given the community a splendid paper and deserves liberal support. He has been a consistent worker for the best interests of his town, has printed a good paper in which makeup, news and advertisements are presented in the best possible nature. The paper is almost all home print and carries such a message of Trommald that every man in town or the vicinity should take the Times. Judged by the paper one would think Trommald a town of several thousand population.

AN ELIXIR OF YOUTH

THERE is but one elixir of youth that is any good, said Dr. Ernest R. Chipman of San Francisco. And that is a clean life, a clear conscience, regular personal habits, a simple diet, steady work according to one's strength in some useful vocation, and a kindly spirit. Mix thoroughly and take every day in the year.

THE Minneapolis Journal says there's a change in keynote oratory at political conventions, that it is free of ostentation and artificiality, that the audience desires ease and simplicity in a speaker, that the points are to be briefly and clearly stated. Maybe so, maybe so, but Hershell B. Jones wrote the above thoughts before Pat Harrison of Mississippi turned loose the floodgates of oratory at the democratic national convention. Pat is a master of the florid, southern style and can pour out a sheet of words resembling an unleashed water power.

THE immigration bill, carrying the Japanese exclusion clause, as passed by congress, does not suit Japan. The Flowery Kingdom should not be depressed. Congress often does things which the American public doesn't like either. And when you talk of exclusion, Japan herself excludes Chinese, Koreans and inhabitants of Java from its dominions. The exclusion idea is nothing new. Canada, Australia and New Zealand also exclude the Japanese and other Oriental races.

IT must have been a regular old ball game in St. Louis where fans showered the umpire with pop bottles. It was the old complaint, that the "umps" was suffering with astigmatism and that the fans, in bleachers and grandstand, could see balls and strikes better than Umpire Holmes, back of the bat.

THE jaws of the nation continue in rhythm, as usual, and William Wrigley's company has again declared a dividend of 25c a share. The outlook for greater sales of chewing gum holds good, says Mr. Wrigley. Profits for the month of May established a record in the history of the company.

THE "Third Party" tried to get La Follette to run as their candidate for the presidency and he refused. Now the socialists want him. "Bob", in the end, may get so independent he won't run at all for any party or anything.

A MASSACHUSETTS court rules that a pedestrian is not obliged to jump out of the way of an automobile. Maybe—says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, but it takes a lot of faith, hope and stubbornness not to.

VANCOUVER, British Columbia, held a beer plebiscite. The sale of beer by the glass was defeated by 17,073 votes to 15,964. Maybe they will continue selling it by the keg.

NINA WILCOX PUTNAM, who had a romance early in the year, has not let it affect her sense of humor. She keeps right on writing funny stuff for a syndicate.

THE Trommald Times very sagely remarks that it is no wonder girls learn to swim more easily than men. Who wants to teach a man to swim?

Miss Anna Case, Metropolitan opera soprano, sang the Star Spangled Banner.

The whole crowd joined in the chorus, led by Miss Case. Cheers and applause followed.

The gavel used in calling the convention to order was broken with the first smash. Chairman Hull was introduced, and after obtaining order through beating of a new gavel on the table until it, too, threatened to go the way of the other, announced the invocation. At first he said "Cardinal Gibbons" would lead in prayer, but after a couple of more false starts announced it was Cardinal Hayes who was to do it.

The official call of the convention was then read by Secretary Greathouse of the democratic national committee.

At his conclusion the temporary officers were put into nomination. Pat Harrison led off as temporary chairman and announcement of his name brought a round of cheering and prolonged handclapping. Other officers named were Secretary Charles A. Greathouse, Indiana, executive secretary, Burt New, District of Columbia, and numerous assistant secretaries. The chair then recognized ex-Governor Campbell of Ohio, who asked that a committee be named to escort Chairman Harrison to the platform.

Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Nebraska; Miss Caroline Rutz Reese, Connecticut, and Newton D. Baker, Ohio.

Harrison's appearance was greeted with prolonged cheers and applause.

Harrison, Keynoter

"Tear the hide off 'em, Pat," and "we are counting on you, old man," and similar shouts went up from the floor. Harrison waited for quiet to be restored and then slowly proceeded with his keynote speech to the convention.

As he sped along with his address the heat began to work on Harrison. Slowly but steadily his collar began to droop down, but not so with the delegates. Frequently they interrupted him with cries of "Attaboy, Pat," and "Give 'em some more, Pat."

Harrison slipped away from the text of his prepared speech from time to time to give strength and color to some of his utterances. Once he referred to the G. O. P. as the "Grand Oil Party" and won laughter and applause.

But the greatest demonstration to date came when he recited all the investigations the republicans launched in search of war graft by former administration officials and then challenged the republicans to answer: "What were the results?"

"Where was the tainted dollar spent?" "Where was the defrauded soldier?"

"Name the democratic cabinet minister disgraced."

Zest was added to the demonstration by the apparent belief of McAdoo delegates that Harrison's last remark reflected credit on their candidate.

Delegations rose, shouted and cheered. The band even started up, but the demonstration was not prolonged.

Refers to Woodrow Wilson

Later came the first reference to Woodrow Wilson.

Like a shot every delegation leaped to its feet with a piercing yell. The banner man in the Ohio delegation ripped his standard from its socket in the floor and started a parade. Amidst shouting and cheering the delegations with their standards swarmed into line and marched around and around the delegates' section.

Shouts of "Wilson," and cheers and shouts continued. As the band struck up marching airs they were nearly drowned out in the noise.

William Jennings Bryan was in the heart of the jam. The New Jersey stadard was held high in the air before the speaker's standard.

The band struck up "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah" and the Garden rang with the voices of the great crowd singing together. Miss Case stepped again to the speaker's position and sang the verses of the great hymn, leading the crowd in chorus.

Bryan sang loudly. The old time democratic revival spirit had taken hold of the convention for the first tmie. At 2:15 Harrison resumed speaking and ended at 2:40 p. m.

PLATFORM BATTLE IS NOW TO FOLLOW

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 24.—The Democratic national convention swung through its first session today swayed by the skillful and forceful oratory of Senator Pat Harrison and cleared the way for its first big battle—that over the platform.

It was hot today and it was still hotter in the Garden. Harrison carried the delegates to a high pitch of enthusiasm and once at the conclusion of a long drawn out demonstration for Woodrow Wilson there was a moment when the great throng struck a revival note. The band was playing "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah." Suddenly a beautiful figure in white stepped to the speaker's platform and sang the verses of the hymn and led the crowd in the chorus.

The vision in white was Anna Case, star of the Metropolitan Opera company. She expressed the spirit of the convention which added to the tribute paid to Woodrow Wilson.

In fact, the first session was permeated with the atmosphere of respect for the Democratic war president. Every reference to his name brought cheering and applause and on one occasion the demonstration lasted more than 15 minutes.

In the first session today a little woman—Mrs. Reeves of the state of Washington—completed the tribute to the party's dead leader, reading a resolution honoring him as the incomparable American. Mrs. Reeves moved that the convention adjourn out of respect for his memory until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The motion carried and adjournment was taken. The resolutions committee went immediately to the Waldorf hotel to begin deliberations over the party platform. The resolutions committee, which will frame the platform, includes James A. Nowell of Minnesota and C. J. Fish of North Dakota.

Half in Mexico, Half in U. S., President Obregon Reviews Mexican Troops and Delivers Address

When the President of Mexico went recently to Nogales, Mexico, to review the troops and make the principal address at the ceremonies the reviewing stand was built directly across the international boundary line. When President Obregon moved about as he spoke he was standing part of the time in Mexico and part of the time on United States soil.

Children make constipation a habit—relieve them with Kellogg's Bran

Children punish themselves terribly by ignoring nature's demands. They bring constipation upon themselves. They invite the many other diseases which can be traced to constipation. Immediate steps should be taken to rid them and keep them free from this disease.

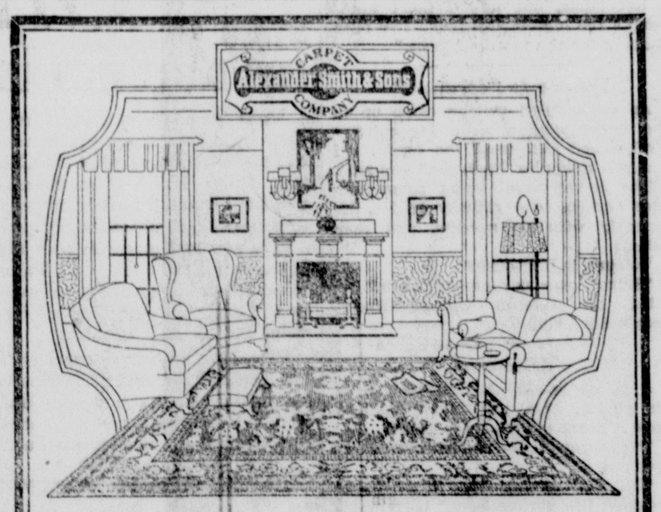

It takes ALL bran to be 100 per cent effective. That's what Kellogg's is—ALL bran. That is why doctors everywhere recommend Kellogg's. That is why Kellogg's Bran carries a money-back guarantee to bring permanent relief, if eaten regularly, in the most chronic cases of constipation. That is why Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, has brought glorious, glowing health to thousands—because it is ALL bran.

No matter how long one has suffered with constipation, Kellogg's Bran will bring permanent relief IF EATEN EVERY DAY—at least two tablespoonfuls—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Kellogg's Bran is delicious. It has a crisp, nut-like flavor that simply delights the taste. It is a wonderful surprise if one has been used to ordinary, unpalatable brans.

There are many ways to serve Kellogg's Bran. Eat it with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Look for the recipes on every package and try it in muffins, bread, griddle cakes, etc.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is made in Battle Creek and is sold by grocers everywhere. It is served by the leading hotels and clubs.

GAS TAXES AS ROAD REVENUE

ADVOCATES FURTHER INSIST THAT PROPOSAL WILL CARRY

Brainerd Dispatch readers wishing all automobile tax revenue used for road improvements will vote 'yes' on the gas tax amendment next November.

Under a ruling by Attorney General C. L. Hilton, the legislature now can impose a tax on gasoline but the receipts must go into the general state expense fund. The only effect of the gax tax amendment, it is explained, will be to put into the state road fund the income from any gas tax that may be levied.

All other details are for the legislature to determine, says a paragraph in the current highway bulletin following many inquires about the gas tax proposel. The legislature has full authority to levy taxes on motor vehicles and on gasoline sales as well and to fix all rates, it continues. It has power to revise present rates either upward or downward. About the only power it lacks in this instance is that to place any gas tax collections in the highway fund.

That deficiency will be supplied by the votes of nearly 500,000 car and truck owners at the November election, their representatives assert, because auto owners will insist that auto and like taxes be used only to improve roads. They hold they are entitled to have their taxes expended for better highways which afford them tangible and direct results.

Automobile club officials forsee a strong probability that a gas tax will be voted in the legislature regardless of the outcome of the referendum. This is because 36 states report it popular and because it will take from auto tourists from other states upwards of half a million dollars annually to swell Minnesota funds. It is generally agreed also that the rate will be 2 cents a gallon, the average in other states being slightly higher.

The question of making the gas tax an additional highway levy or offsetting it with a reduction in the auto taxes may occasion a fight between the faction clamoring for lower taxes all down the line and those who contend that average trunk highway users can profit every year by paying more taxes on their cars and trucks. However, the bulletin states, that also will be for the legislature to decide.

BAKER OF OHIO

(By United Press)

New York, June 24.—Among the dark horses before the democratic national convention, June 24, will be found Newton D. Baker of Cleveland, O., Secretary of War in the Wilson war cabinet.

Baker was born in Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 3, 1871, and was graduated from Johns Hopkins University with an A. B. degree in 1892. Two years later he received his LL.B. from Washington and Lee University.

One of his first official positions was when he became secretary to Postmaster General Wilson, under the administration of Grover Cleveland, from 1896 to 1897. In the latter year he retired to practice law in Martinsburg.

In 1902 he became the first assistant city solicitor of Cleveland, O., and was director of law in 1903, becoming city solicitor in 1903 and serving until 1909.

He was mayor of Cleveland from 1912 to 1916 and resumed the practice of law in Cleveland Jan. 1, 1916.

He was appointed Secretary of War under the administration of Woodrow Wilson on March 9, 1916.

Upon retirement as Secretary of War he returned to Cleveland and engaged in the practice of law.

Baker is physically undersized and free mixing in city politics made him careless of conventions. He is an eloquent and convincing public speaker.

As Secretary of War in years of great stress, Baker unflinchingly carried out Wilson policies. He was under constant and bitter fire, but even his enemies admitted that he "got things done."

Former President Wilson said of him: "My association and constant conference with the secretary of war have taught me to regard him as one of the ablest public officials I ever knew."

NATIONAL PARKS OF GREAT VALUE

By LAWRENCE MARTIN

Yellowstone Park, Wyo., June 24.—The Yellowstone and other national parks are not alone national assets—they are national necessities, and ought to be regarded by the appropriation committees of congress as "investments in better and truer Americanism," Senator Tasker L. Oddie of Nevada said here today, as he and Mrs. Oddie set out on a months vacation in the park.

"If Congress could meet in the Yellowstone, we should have better laws and saner counsels" said Senator Oddie. "That idea may sound fantastic, but I am serious. If capital and labor, deadlocked in some dispute, could bring their differences to the counsel table here in this wonderful place, we should have fewer strikes and a far better understanding between the captains of industry and the men in the ranks."

"The national park idea has only begun to be understood by the people of this country. When it comes to be fully appreciated, Yellowstone will not hold the people who will come each year to see its wonders and to have their bodies literally resurrected in the revivifying aid. It ought to be made possible for the people who live in the squalor of Chicago and New York slums to come here. It ought to be made possible somehow for every one who lives in America to come here. No one who does come, but goes away a better American."

Senator Oddie referred to the fact that Yellowstone Park is practically self supporting now.

"I don't believe we should expect the national parks—any of them—to support themselves," the Senator said. "Of course, no one favors squandering money, but the manner in which our parks are administered does away with any vestige of that danger. Every dollar Congress appropriates for Yellowstone is a distinct investment in a better and truer Americanism. Every member of Congress ought to visit this park. They would all go back to increase the appropriations, and to see to it that the highways leading to Yellowstone are improved and maintained properly, through a maximum of federal cooperation with the sparsely settled western states."

Senator Oddie will tour the park as a rest cure following a strenuous winter's work in the Senate. He and Mrs. Oddie have no schedule.

"The ideal way to see Yellowstone, in my opinion," he said, "is to go along loafing, without being tied to any set program. That's the way we are going to spend the month."

Miss Mildred Jacoby, beautiful young daughter of Mrs. Charles Jacoby, 1107 South 7th Street, Burlington, Iowa, is another of youthful age to whom the Tanlac treatment has proved invaluable. Speaking of her daughter's experience, recently, Mrs. Jacoby said:

"Three years ago, when Mildred was only ten, she became so run-down as to cause me continual worry and anxiety. She seemed to care for nothing to eat and often was troubled with indigestion and restless sleep. She was pale and underweight, took very little interest in play, or amusements with other children, and her school work was a burden to her.

"Tanlac gave her just the help she needed and four bottles were all that was necessary to build her up to splendid health. Now Mildred eats and sleeps fine, has a ruddy complexion and is making wonderful progress at school. In fact, she is altogether unlike the run-down, puny little girl she was before taking Tanlac. Judging from the results in her case Tanlac is a medicine of wonderful merit."

GAS TAXES AS ROAD REVENUE

ADVOCATES FURTHER INSIST THAT PROPOSAL WILL CARRY

Brainerd Dispatch readers wishing all automobile tax revenue used for road improvements will vote 'yes' on the gas tax amendment next November.

Under a ruling by Attorney General C. L. Hilton, the legislature now can impose a tax on gasoline but the receipts must go into the general state expense fund. The only effect of the gax tax amendment, it is explained, will be to put into the state road fund the income from any gas tax that may be levied.

All other details are for the legislature to determine, says a paragraph in the current highway bulletin following many inquires about the gas tax proposel. The legislature has full authority to levy taxes on motor vehicles and on gasoline sales as well and to fix all rates, it continues. It has power to revise present rates either upward or downward. About the only power it lacks in this instance is that to place any gas tax collections in the highway fund.

That deficiency will be supplied by the votes of nearly 500,000 car and truck owners at the November election, their representatives assert, because auto owners will insist that auto and like taxes be used only to improve roads. HARRISON SOUNDS KEYNOTE OF THE DEM. CAMPAIGN

"KEYNOTER" DENOUNCES LAST FOUR YEARS OF REPUBLICAN ADMINISTRATION

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 24.—The democratic wheel began its maddest whirl in New York today, as delegates from 48 states and 6 territories met in national convention to choose a presidential and vice-presidential candidate.

Who those nominees will be and upon what platform they will run no one predicts. But what every one knows—that this will be the hardest fought democratic convention in many years.

Pushing, clamoring crowds began to seige upon Madison Square Garden, the campaign site, in the early morning hours and long before 11 a. m., the hour of meeting, practically every seat in the great auditorium was occupied.

There was excitement everywhere. In the convention hall there was the turbulent symphony of thousands of voices, the shuffle of feet, the odor of perfume and many bodies—and an atmosphere as tense as a fiddle-string.

If the delegates themselves could forget that they are here on business, New York wouldn't let them. New York is interested in the democratic national convention—its own son—Al Smith is one of the most prominent candidates.

And so, along Broadway, the cafe night-birds were to be seen about, blinking in the morning sun, but determined to be in on the fun.

The New York police force—certainly the handsomest constabulary in the world—was out in force around the Garden, keeping the crowds in order and guarding the doors.

When Cordell Hull, chairman of the democratic national committee, finally advanced to the front of the speakers' platform, the crowd in the great auditorium came to attention, but the rumble of voices persisted.

On the Main Floor

Down on the main floor where the delegates sit, the banners of states ran back in rows to the far reaches of the hall's cavern. Iowa, Mississippi, California—all the rest, each delegation grouped in one solid block of men and women.

The gayety, however, came from the galleries. It was the banners there and the cheering mobs and the faces leaning far over balcony rails that showed the visitors how popular Al Smith is in his home town.

Smith banners were scattered everywhere. There were those, too, of his foremost opponent—the Californian, William Gibbs McAdoo.

Chairman Hull swung his gavel down exactly as the clock struck eleven—and long minutes later, when the hubbub subsided, the democratic national convention was actually under way.

The next move was a traditional one in the history of conventions—the invocation of Divine blessing upon the gathering. There was comparative silence while the prayer arose, except for the nervous movement of shifting feet. Finally, the ultimate "amen" was uttered, and from the center of the auditorium, the 10th Regiment band crashed into the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner."

For a moment, party differences were obliterated and only country remained. Swelling throats made the Garden shake with the might of their melody.

And now the business begins. Hull presents Charles Greathouse of Indiana, secretary of the democratic national committee. He reads the call to convention—which is the official warrant of the gathering.

Then the slate of proposed temporary officers is presented, including Senator Pat Harrison, the fiery-tongued Mississippi orator. The slate is adopted without dissension.

There is a flutter among the ladies as the handsome Senator Harrison advances to the platform to be temporary chairman of the convention, and to sound the "keynote" of the democratic presidential campaign. There are cheers from the delegates.

Harrison is Popular

Harrison is popular throughout the party. He is a commanding figure and one of the youngest of the democratic leaders. True, his hair is receding from the forehead, and a ghost of a paunch threatens his middle—but there is a boyish grin on his face and a conquering glint in his eyes.

When his ovation has subsided, Senator Pat begins. And what a flood of oratory pours into the auditorium! Harrison has served an apprenticeship in the hardest and best school of florid speech—the south. He has held the senate spellbound with the race of his wit and drive of his words. He knows how to charm, enrage, hypnotize an audience. He does not fail here.

If there was any lack of enthusiasm when the convention began, there certainly is none now. There are roars of laughter, boos, hisses, cheers, as Harrison cracks his sharp whip against the hide of the G. O. P. elephant.

Harrison denounces the last four years of republican administration. He speaks of the "vacillating foreign policy of the Hughes-Harding-Coolidge" government and the Garden, thinking of the League of Nations, yells its approbation.

He gives the democrats of congress the credit for effecting tax reduction, denouncing the late Mellon plan as an iniquitous financial scheme for the relief of the wealthy only. He praises Senator Simmons, the democratic financial expert, and father of the proposed 40 per cent surtax. He tells the delegates that the democratic party has always been the party of the people, by the people, and for the people.

And then he comes to the climax of his speech—that portion in which vindictive eloquence will be given full play—the congressional investigations.

While the galleries rock with tumult, he describes the republican party as 'a passul of rascals," or words to that effect. He repeats the findings of the Teapot Dome committee, praises the work of Senator Tom Walsh, Montana, its prosecutor.

Nor does he forget to mention Forbes, former Attorney General Daugherty, Secretary Denby, Secretary Fall and others whose names gained newspaper prominence as the result of the work of investigators.

When Harrison has concluded, he will attempt to transact the rest of the business—but with difficulty. The delegates have had too much excitement, have experienced too much emotion to relish dry-as-dust routine.

But that routine is one of the most important things in the convention. It determines who will control.

When that is done and the announcements have been completed, the gavel will fall—and the great convention will adjourn until tomorrow noon.

Why He Went Faster

A foreign young man purchased an automobile and was seen driving down the street about 60 miles an hour. A policeman yelled at him to stop, but instead of slowing up he increased his speed. When the officer finally caught up with him he roared:

"Why didn't you stop? Didn't you hear me holler back there?"

"Oh, vas dat you dat yelled? I thought it vas somebody I run over."

RALSTON OF INDIANA

(By United Press)
By G. P. OVERTON
(Indiana News Manager of the United Press.)

New York, June 24.—Samuel M. Ralston, United States senator from Indiana, was drafted to enter the race for the Democratic nomination for president.

Disclaiming any presidential aspirations and refusing to turn a hand in the furtherance of a boom for his nomination, Ralston found his name thrust into the contest by Thomas Taggart, Democratic boss of Indiana, and a coterie of stalwart supporters who saw in him the qualities they believed necessary to lead the party to victory.

For months Ralston watched the boom develop and declined to take it seriously. All suggestions that he start an active campaign for the nomination were turned aside with the frank statement that he was not a candidate.

At last, when the recent Democratic state convention in Indiana resolved itself into a Ralston-for-President club, he faced the delegates and told them he was not in the running.

"I have never aspired to the presidency of this country," he said. "There is something about the greatness of this exalted position that admonishes me against wanting to undertake the execution of its grave and solemn duties.

"And let me lay additional emphasis on my state of mind by saying that this convention will please me most by allowing the delegates from Indiana to the national convention to go uninstructed."

A moment later, Tom Taggart was on his feet with the declaration that the party should "draft Ralston, even if he didn't want to run."

Heeded Ralston

The next day, however, the delegation met to organize and voted enthusiastically to back Ralston to the end in the balloting as a presidential nominee.

Ralston's name was first mentioned as a prospective presidential candidate at the end of the congressional campaign of 1922. In that campaign he made the race for the senatorship against Albert J. Beveridge, a brilliant orator and one of the best campaigners Indiana has ever seen.

Ralston had said five years before when he retired from the governorship that he was through with public life. But the party called on him as the only man who had a chance of beating Beveridge.

The Democratic organization in Indiana was still demoralized from the disastrous defeat of 1920 and even the most optimistic leaders were chary of their predictions as the campaign opened.

Ralston went into the campaign quietly and with a simple declaration of the principles on which he sought the voters' suport. The majority he piled up against Beveridge was a state-wide surprise.

The Ralston presidential boom began spontaneously the day after election. Democrats of Indiana almost instinctively began looking to the senator-elect as the man they would support in the presidential race of 1924.

With the backing of Taggart, the boom assumed national proportions. Ralston's potential strength as a candidate for the presidency was emphasized by Taggart when George Brennan, Democratic leader of Illinois, and the late Charles P. Murphy, Tammany Hall chieftain, went to Indiana more than a year ago to begin laying plans for the national convention.

Though practically all of his life has been spent in Indiana, Ralston is an Ohioan by birth. He was born in Tuscarawa county, O., December 1, 1857.

At the age of eight his family moved to Spencer, Owen county, Indiana, where he grew to manhood. His summers were spent in toil on his father's farm and in the winter time he attended the brief sessions of the country school nearby.

For seven years he taught school and saved funds to obtain a higher education. At the age of 27 he was graduated from the normal school at Danville, Ind.

Returning to Spencer, Ralston entered the office of a country lawyer and read law until he was qualified for admission to the bar. Later he moved to Lebanon and practiced law for a number of years.

He was elected governor of Indiana in 1912. During his four-year term he gave the state an administration that has become a tradition with the Democratic party of the state. The state debt was reduced, a beginning was made on the state highway system, a program of reform legislation was pushed thorugh and serious labor difficulties were smoothed out in Indianapolis by his intervention.

At the conclusion of his term, Ralston retired from public life. He practiced law for five years before he was again called by the party.

Upon his election to the senatorship, he said he had no further political aspirations and announced that he would retire at the end of his term. Once more, however, he was drafted—this time to be placed before the Democratic national convention as a candidate for the presidential nomination.

There are many things about Ralston that recall another Democratic leader of a generation ago. In appearance, Ralston bears a striking resemblance to Grover Cleveland.

Ralston has the same bluntness of expression and disregard for the dictates of political expediency, the same firm belief in the fundamental principles of the Democratic party and faith in American institutions that marked the leadership of Cleveland.

His political philosophy, Ralston recently summed up in these words: "The salvation of the people and the success of popular government rest absolutely on the honesty and efficiency of the public servants. Without honesty, without intelligence and economy in public expenditures, no political party deserves the public confidence. All other issues are secondary."

When Cordell Hull, chairman of the democratic national committee, finally advanced to the front of the speakers' platform, the crowd in the great auditorium came to attention, but the rumble of voices persisted.

On the Main Floor

Down on the main floor where the delegates sit, the banners of states ran back in rows to the far reaches of the hall's cavern. Iowa, Mississippi, California—all the rest, each delegation grouped in one solid block of men and women.

The gayety, however, came from the galleries. It was the banners there and the cheering mobs and the faces leaning far over balcony rails that showed the visitors how popular Al Smith is in his home town.

Smith banners were scattered everywhere. There were those, too, of his foremost opponent—the Californian, William Gibbs McAdoo.

Chairman Hull swung his gavel down exactly as the clock struck eleven—and long minutes later, when the hubbub subsided, the democratic national convention was actually under way.

The next move was a traditional one in the history of conventions—the invocation of Divine blessing upon the gathering. There was comparative silence while the prayer arose, except for the nervous movement of shifting feet. Finally, the ultimate "amen" was uttered, and from the center of the auditorium, the 10th Regiment band crashed into the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner."

For a moment, party differences were obliterated and only country remained. Swelling throats made the Garden shake with the might of their melody.

And now the business begins. Hull presents Charles Greathouse of Indiana, secretary of the democratic national committee. He reads the call to convention—which is the official warrant of the gathering.

Then the slate of proposed temporary officers is presented, including Senator Pat Harrison, the fiery-tongued Mississippi orator. The slate is adopted without dissension.

There is a flutter among the ladies as the handsome Senator Harrison advances to the platform to be temporary chairman of the convention, and to sound the "keynote" of the democratic presidential campaign. There are cheers from the delegates.

Harrison is Popular

Harrison is popular throughout the party. He is a commanding figure and one of the youngest of the democratic leaders. True, his hair is receding from the forehead, and a ghost of a paunch threatens his middle—but there is a boyish grin on his face and a conquering glint in his eyes.

When his ovation has subsided, Senator Pat begins. And what a flood of oratory pours into the auditorium! Harrison has served an apprenticeship in the hardest and best school of florid speech—the south. He has held the senate spellbound with the race of his wit and drive of his words. He knows how to charm, enrage, hypnotize an audience. He does not fail here.

If there was any lack of enthusiasm when the convention began, there certainly is none now. There are roars of laughter, boos, hisses, cheers, as Harrison cracks his sharp whip against the hide of the G. O. P. elephant.

Harrison denounces the last four years of republican administration. He speaks of the "vacillating foreign policy of the Hughes-Harding-Coolidge" government and the Garden, thinking of the League of Nations, yells its approbation.

He gives the democrats of congress the credit for effecting tax reduction, denouncing the late Mellon plan as an iniquitous financial scheme for the relief of the wealthy only. He praises Senator Simmons, the democratic financial expert, and father of the proposed 40 per cent surtax. He tells the delegates that the democratic party has always been the party of the people, by the people, and for the people.

And then he comes to the climax of his speech—that portion in which vindictive eloquence will be given full play—the congressional investigations.

While the galleries rock with tumult, he describes the republican party as 'a passul of rascals," or words to that effect. He repeats the findings of the Teapot Dome committee, praises the work of Senator Tom Walsh, Montana, its prosecutor.

Nor does he forget to mention Forbes, former Attorney General Daugherty, Secretary Denby, Secretary Fall and others whose names gained newspaper prominence as the result of the work of investigators.

When Harrison has concluded, he will attempt to transact the rest of the business—but with difficulty. The delegates have had too much excitement, have experienced too much emotion to relish dry-as-dust routine.

But that routine is one of the most important things in the convention. It determines who will control.

When that is done and the announcements have been completed, the gavel will fall—and the great convention will adjourn until tomorrow noon.

Why He Went Faster

A foreign young man purchased an automobile and was seen driving down the street about 60 miles an hour. A policeman yelled at him to stop, but instead of slowing up he increased his speed. When the officer finally caught up with him he roared:

"Why didn't you stop? Didn't you hear me holler back there?"

"Oh, vas dat you dat yelled? I thought it vas somebody I run over."

RALSTON OF INDIANA

(By United Press)
By G. P. OVERTON
(Indiana News Manager of the United Press.)

New York, June 24.—Samuel M. Ralston, United States senator from Indiana, was drafted to enter the race for the Democratic nomination for president.

Disclaiming any presidential aspirations and refusing to turn a hand in the furtherance of a boom for his nomination, Ralston found his name thrust into the contest by Thomas Taggart, Democratic boss of Indiana, and a coterie of stalwart supporters who saw in him the qualities they believed necessary to lead the party to victory.

For months Ralston watched the boom develop and declined to take it seriously. All suggestions that he start an active campaign for the nomination were turned aside with the frank statement that he was not a candidate.

At last, when the recent Democratic state convention in Indiana resolved itself into a Ralston-for-President club, he faced the delegates and told them he was not in the running.

"I have never aspired to the presidency of this country," he said. "There is something about the greatness of this exalted position that admonishes me against wanting to undertake the execution of its grave and solemn duties.

"And let me lay additional emphasis on my state of mind by saying that this convention will please me most by allowing the delegates from Indiana to the national convention to go uninstructed."

A moment later, Tom Taggart was on his feet with the declaration that the party should "draft Ralston, even if he didn't want to run."

Heeded Ralston

The next day, however, the delegation met to organize and voted enthusiastically to back Ralston to the end in the balloting as a presidential nominee.

Ralston's name was first mentioned as a prospective presidential candidate at the end of the congressional campaign of 1922. In that campaign he made the race for the senatorship against Albert J. Beveridge, a brilliant orator and one of the best campaigners Indiana has ever seen.

Ralston had said five years before when he retired from the governorship that he was through with public life. But the party called on him as the only man who had a chance of beating Beveridge.

The Democratic organization in Indiana was still demoralized from the disastrous defeat of 1920 and even the most optimistic leaders were chary of their predictions as the campaign opened.

Ralston went into the campaign quietly and with a simple declaration of the principles on which he sought the voters' suport. The majority he piled up against Beveridge was a state-wide surprise.

The Ralston presidential boom began spontaneously the day after election. Democrats of Indiana almost instinctively began looking to the senator-elect as the man they would support in the presidential race of 1924.

With the backing of Taggart, the boom assumed national proportions. Ralston's potential strength as a candidate for the presidency was emphasized by Taggart when George Brennan, Democratic leader of Illinois, and the late Charles P. Murphy, Tammany Hall chieftain, went to Indiana more than a year ago to begin laying plans for the national convention.

Though practically all of his life has been spent in Indiana, Ralston is an Ohioan by birth. He was born in Tuscarawa county, O., December 1, 1857.

At the age of eight his family moved to Spencer, Owen county, Indiana, where he grew to manhood. His summers were spent in toil on his father's farm and in the winter time he attended the brief sessions of the country school nearby.

For seven years he taught school and saved funds to obtain a higher education. At the age of 27 he was graduated from the normal school at Danville, Ind.

Returning to Spencer, Ralston entered the office of a country lawyer and read law until he was qualified for admission to the bar. Later he moved to Lebanon and practiced law for a number of years.

He was elected governor of Indiana in 1912. During his four-year term he gave the state an administration that has become a tradition with the Democratic party of the state. The state debt was reduced, a beginning was made on the state highway system, a program of reform legislation was pushed thorugh and serious labor difficulties were smoothed out in Indianapolis by his intervention.

At the conclusion of his term, Ralston retired from public life. He practiced law for five years before he was again called by the party.

Upon his election to the senatorship, he said he had no further political aspirations and announced that he would retire at the end of his term. Once more, however, he was drafted—this time to be placed before the Democratic national convention as a candidate for the presidential nomination.

There are many things about Ralston that recall another Democratic leader of a generation ago. In appearance, Ralston bears a striking resemblance to Grover Cleveland.

Ralston has the same bluntness of expression and disregard for the dictates of political expediency, the same firm belief in the fundamental principles of the Democratic party and faith in American institutions that marked the leadership of Cleveland.

His political philosophy, Ralston recently summed up in these words: "The salvation of the people and the success of popular government rest absolutely on the honesty and efficiency of the public servants. Without honesty, without intelligence and economy in public expenditures, no political party deserves the public confidence. All other issues are secondary."

FORCED TO SWIM HALF A MILE

Swimming half a mile to shore when their boat capsized in Big Sandy lake, F. R. Ricketson of Minneapolis, narrowly escaped death in a wind and rain storm. His two companions, Fred A. Johnson and Earl Hanson, clung to the boat and eventually drifted ashore. Ricketson was forced to swim as the boat drifted from him.

The saddest part of the accident, said Ricketson, was losing all the pike caught. The only trophy he brought back was a sunburned nose and neck.

Mr. Ricketson is in Brainerd today arranging to have the Breneman Bakery act as local distributor of the Excelsior Baking Co., of Minneapolis products.

CUSTER MASSACRE

48th Anniversary of Famous Battle Will Be Celebrated on June 25

America's six hundred who rode to their death in the Battle of the Little Big Horn, commonly known as the "Custer Massacre," can vie for bravery with Tennyson's immortal six hundred in the English light brigade, declares Olin D. Wheeler, historian of the Northern Pacific railway.

June 25 will be the 48th anniversary of the famous battle, fought just a short distance south of Custer, Mont. Indians of the Crow agency will commemorate the event with a three day Wild West stampede starting this morning and lasting until Wednesday night. The stampede is being held at Garryowen, two miles south of the battlefield and the Indians will hold their dances each night.

Recounting his visit to the battlefield in 1892 and his conversations with the few survivors of Custer's men, Mr. Wheeler said: "The Big Horn hills with their six hundred can easily vie with Balaklava and its six hundred in the Crimean war. The Custer battle has been mistakenly called a 'massacre' by many, but I do not believe this term can properly be applied to it. The slaughter came about in the course of a military campaign directed against the Indian antagonists.

"The year 1876 was one of thrills. The American Centennial exposition was on in Philadelphia. Then suddenly war broke out with the Indians in the Northwest. The outbreak was not unexpected and the government had been preparing for it for some time. Supplies for the troops were rushed in over the Northern Pacific railroad which was then completed to Bismarck and Mandan, N. D."

SAW EXPLOSION ON MISSISSIPPI

P. D. Humphrey, Son of P. V. Humphrey of This City, Was on Board Sister Ship

CALIFORNIA TOWED TARGET

As Pharmacist Mate, Young Humphrey, Checked Up Dead and Wounded

Mr. and Mrs. P. V. Humphrey are in receipt of a letter from their son, P. D. Humphrey, who is pharmacist mate, second class, on the U. S. S. "California," belonging to the same fleet as the ill-fated "Mississippi."

The letter is written from San Pedro, California, and gives a number of details concerning the Mississippi's explosion that were not published in the papers. This part of the letter follows:

"I suppose that by this time you have heard about the accident which occurred on the Mississippi, but I'll tell you about it, too. Perhaps you will get more out of it than you did from the papers, as I was right in it, and know all about it.

"The California was towing a target for the Mississippi, Tennessee and Idaho, and keeping track of hits, etc. Everything went along fine for the first eight salvos, then all at once we saw a terrible cloud of yellowish-green smoke from the number 2 turret on the Mississippi, and knew that something had gone wrong.

"We received a wireless to send medical aid at once as there had been an explosion on the Mississippi. This is where I got into it. The California and the other ships lowered boats and four other corps men and myself with two doctors went right over.

"Things surely were in an awful mess. From the explosion of the guns in such a small place as the turret is, and the flame so hot it melted all the hatches, so that no one could get out, it was necessary to cut through with torches to get at the dead. When they did get in there was so much gas there that no one could go in until it was all blown out.

"When they did get in it was my detail to count the dead as they were brought out, and believe me, it was a terrible sight, all burned, gased, etc. We got out 48 dead, 45 men and three officers.

"It is still a mystery how three men came out alive, as they were away down in the handling room which was flooded with water. These three are on the Relief, but to tell you the truth, they might just as well be dead, as to be in the condition they are, because their minds are gone completely. All they say is, "My God, the flame," and then they scream.

"Services were held for the dead this morning. Between fifteen and twenty thousand people, including the gobs, attended. The services were held at the Athletic field in San Pedro, and I attended. It was a very impressive service, a regular military funeral, with everything that goes with it.

"Yesterday the docks were crowded with relatives of the dead, all waiting for a boat to take them to the ship."

FORCED TO SWIM HALF A MILE

Swimming half a mile to shore when their boat capsized in Big Sandy lake, F. R. Ricketson of Minneapolis, narrowly escaped death in a wind and rain storm. His two companions, Fred A. Johnson and Earl Hanson, clung to the boat and eventually drifted ashore. Ricketson was forced to swim as the boat drifted from him.

The saddest part of the accident, said Ricketson, was losing all the pike caught. The only trophy he brought back was a sunburned nose and neck.

Mr. Ricketson is in Brainerd today arranging to have the Breneman Bakery act as local distributor of the Excelsior Baking Co., of Minneapolis products.

CUSTER MASSACRE

48th Anniversary of Famous Battle Will Be Celebrated on June 25

America's six hundred who rode to their death in the Battle of the Little Big Horn, commonly known as the "Custer Massacre," can vie for bravery with Tennyson's immortal six hundred in the English light brigade, declares Olin D. Wheeler, historian of the Northern Pacific railway.

June 25 will be the 48th anniversary of the famous battle, fought just a short distance south of Custer, Mont. Indians of the Crow agency will commemorate the event with a three day Wild West stampede starting this morning and lasting until Wednesday night. The stampede is being held at Garryowen, two miles south of the battlefield and the Indians will hold their dances each night.

Recounting his visit to the battlefield in 1892 and his conversations with the few survivors of Custer's men, Mr. Wheeler said: "The Big Horn hills with their six hundred can easily vie with Balaklava and its six hundred in the Crimean war. The Custer battle has been mistakenly called a 'massacre' by many, but I do not believe this term can properly be applied to it. The slaughter came about in the course of a military campaign directed against the Indian antagonists.

"The year 1876 was one of thrills. The American Centennial exposition was on in Philadelphia. Then suddenly war broke out with the Indians in the Northwest. The outbreak was not unexpected and the government had been preparing for it for some time. Supplies for the troops were rushed in over the Northern Pacific railroad which was then completed to Bismarck and Mandan, N. D."

SAW EXPLOSION ON MISSISSIPPI

P. D. Humphrey, Son of P. V. Humphrey of This City, Was on Board Sister Ship

CALIFORNIA TOWED TARGET

As Pharmacist Mate, Young Humphrey, Checked Up Dead and Wounded

Mr. and Mrs. P. V. Humphrey are in receipt of a letter from their son, P. D. Humphrey, who is pharmacist mate, second class, on the U. S. S. "California," belonging to the same fleet as the ill-fated "Mississippi."

The letter is written from San Pedro, California, and gives a number of details concerning the Mississippi's explosion that were not published in the papers. This part of the letter follows:

"I suppose that by this time you have heard about the accident which occurred on the Mississippi, but I'll tell you about it, too. Perhaps you will get more out of it than you did from the papers, as I was right in it, and know all about it.

"The California was towing a target for the Mississippi, Tennessee and Idaho, and keeping track of hits, etc. Everything went along fine for the first eight salvos, then all at once we saw a terrible cloud of yellowish-green smoke from the number 2 turret on the Mississippi, and knew that something had gone wrong.

"We received a wireless to send medical aid at once as there had been an explosion on the Mississippi. This is where I got into it. The California and the other ships lowered boats and four other corps men and myself with two doctors went right over.

"Things surely were in an awful mess. From the explosion of the guns in such a small place as the turret is, and the flame so hot it melted all the hatches, so that no one could get out, it was necessary to cut through with torches to get at the dead. When they did get in there was so much gas there that no one could go in until it was all blown out.

"When they did get in it was my detail to count the dead as they were brought out, and believe me, it was a terrible sight, all burned, gased, etc. We got out 48 dead, 45 men and three officers.

"It is still a mystery how three men came out alive, as they were away down in the handling room which was flooded with water. These three are on the Relief, but to tell you the truth, they might just as well be dead, as to be in the condition they are, because their minds are gone completely. All they say is, "My God, the flame," and then they scream.

"Services were held for the dead this morning. Between fifteen and twenty thousand people, including the gobs, attended. The services were held at the Athletic field in San Pedro, and I attended. It was a very impressive service, a regular military funeral, with everything that goes with it.

"Yesterday the docks were crowded with relatives of the dead, all waiting for a boat to take them to the ship."

SOCCER FOOTBALL INTERNATIONAL GAME

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, June 24.—Soccer football is perhaps the most truly international of all modern sports.

This was strikingly demonstrated at the Olympic games earlier this month.

Instead of the United States, Great Britain and France monopolizing victories in the Olympic soccer competition, we found what four countries fighting it out in the semi-finals and finals?

Holland—Sweden—Switzerland—Uruguay!

With the possible exception of Sweden, none of these countries will cut much of a figure in the remainder of the games.

Neither will Czecho-Slovakia, nor the Irish Free State, nor Bulgaria. Yet these countries furnished soccer teams that were in the running after those of the United States and France had been eliminated.

One reason for the truly international scope of soccer is its simplicity. It is played on a level field, the object being to kick a ball between two posts and beneath a third. Eleven men play on a side and that is about all there is to the game.

Different nations may develop different techniques; some may use their heads like feet or their feet like heads, and work up a tricky passing game, but, after all, there is the ball, and the single idea of the game is to work it down the field some way and kick it through that goal.

Probably this simplicity, more than anything else, accounts for the fact that the game is played, and played well, in every country. The Swiss could scarcely be expected to hold their own in deep-sea diving, and pole vaulting is thus far a lost art in Soviet Russia, but in every land there is some level sward and some boys and men willing to get out and kick a ball around.

* * * * * * * * *

The four countries that outlasted all others in Olympic elimination matches and came down to the final tests—Uruguay, Switzerland, Sweden and Holland—showed different styles of play, different qualifications of championship caliber.

The Swiss team was the best at the short game, dribbling and passing, feinting and at trick plays. Yet the Uruguayans wore them to a frazzle in the finals and beat them handily, 3 to 0.

Sweden's big husky team was defeated by the diminutive Swiss in the semi-final and Holland lost to Uruguay in a game which was vainly protested. Sweden then beat Holland and the final standing was:

1. Uruguay;
2. Switzerland;
3. Sweden;
4. Holland.

FULTON-GIBBONS MAY FIGHT IN ST. PAUL, REPORTED

St. Paul, June 24.—Whether or not Tom Gibbons and Fred Fulton are to meet in St. Paul next month will be known tonight.

Jack Reddy, matchmaker of the St. Paul fight club, expects to get into long distance communication with Eddie Kane, Gibbons' manager, tonight.

Kane has been on a fishing trip and is expected to return to Chicago today.

If Fulton and Gibbons are matched they will meet at Lexington Park during the last week in July.

Reddy has numerous offers for Fred Fulton to fight July 4, but is holding up until he comes to a final agreement with Kane.

MINNESOTA BASEBALL

Austin, June 24.—Austin defeated Mankato by a 4-to-2 score and kept its slate clean in the Southern Minnesota league. A home run by Phalen of the locals featured the game. Austin plays St. James a postponed game here Wednesday.

St. Cloud, June 24.—A triple tie for first place of the Central Minnesota league is the result of Sunday's games. Clear Lake suffered its first defeat of the season and was pulled down to equal footing with St. Cloud and Cold Spring won by a 6 to 2 score. St. Cloud defeated Long Prairie by a 3 to 1 score. Little Falls scored a 2 to 0 win over the Sauk Rapids-Sartell while Crosby defeated Richmond by a 6 to 0 score.

Waseca, June 24—Waseca gave Faribault a hard battle for honors, but lost out by a 6 to 4 score. St. James blanked New Richmond by a 3 to 0 score.

Winona, June 24.—Risberg pitched Rochester to a 3 to 1 victory over Winona here Sunday.

Stillwater, June 24—Reese Williams, former St. Paul pitcher, held North St. Paul to six scattered hits and Stillwater defeated the visitors by a 5 to 0 score. Williams fanned 11. The game was a regular Friendly Valley league contest.

PLUMMER WINS MANITOBA-SASK. CHAMPIONSHIP

CANADIAN SHOOTER DISTINGUISHES HIMSELF AT WINNIPEG

WAS IN CANADIAN CONTINGENT WHICH SHOT AT BREEZY POINT

C. C. Plummer, of Swan River, Manitoba, who shot so splendidly at Breezy Point Lodge on the occasion of the Minnesota State Trapshooting Tournament, breaking 100 straight one day and having other high runs, won the premier honors at the trap meet in Winnipeg, where he landed the Manitoba-Saskatchewan championship.

Mr. Plummer is a brother-in-law of Arthur Hagberg, Sr., of 624 Norwood street, and Mrs. Plummer and twins are continuing their visit with the Hagbergs.

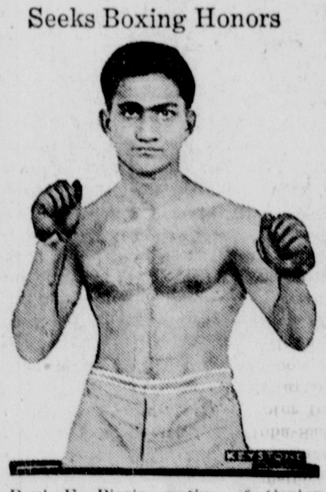

The Winnipeg Evening Tribune says in part: "Chummy" Plummer, of Swan River, is the Manitoba-Saskatchewan champion trapshooter for 1924. This "scatter gun" artist won this honor Tuesday afternoon at the second day's shooting. He did not win the title, however, until after one of the most evenly fought competitions. A shoot off with Bill Geatros, of Weyburn, and Paul Schwager, Dunburn, Sask., was required before the Swan River man finally gained the supremacy. He broke 25 straight in the shoot off. Geatros broke 24 and Schwager 23. It was a most successful close to the most successful shoot in the history of the association.

Plummer, Geatros and Schwager did some remarkable shooting during their two days pasting at the clay birds. Plummer and Schwager were tied for the lead at the termination of the morning shoot, Tuesday, with 185 birds apiece. Geatros had a chance to pick off the prize money, but only tied with the other two.

The other event on Tuesday's propram, the 21 yard handicap, went to Paul Schwager. The Dundurn shot cracked 88 birds out of 100. He was tied by E. Dickie, Minneapolis, and R. Jones professionals, but neither of these shooters was eligible for the prize.

Plummer, it may be stated, is a modest shooter. While at Breezy Point he had little to say, but at home, says his wife, he has trunks full of medals, a room full of cups, won in competitive shooting.

FAST GAME, WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THE LAST INNING

The Southeast Brainerd Pirates were defeated by the Northeast Tigers on Monday evening by a score of 12 to 2. With the exception of the last inning, it was a fast game.

Van Walk Pitched Fine

With Van Walk pitching brilliantly, the Tigers won their first league game last night defeating the Pirates 12 to 2 at the Sixth Street grounds. The outcome of the game was never in doubt, the winners scoring five runs in the first innings. Ed Anderson, third base for the Tigers, provided a comic feature by stealing a grounder from the hands of Thorkildson, short stop, and getting his man at first. Center-fielder Johnson of the Pirates ended a Tiger rally by a pretty catch of a long fly to deep right center.

SOCCER FOOTBALL INTERNATIONAL GAME

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, June 24.—Soccer football is perhaps the most truly international of all modern sports.

This was strikingly demonstrated at the Olympic games earlier this month.

Instead of the United States, Great Britain and France monopolizing victories in the Olympic soccer competition, we found what four countries fighting it out in the semi-finals and finals?

Holland—Sweden—Switzerland—Uruguay!

With the possible exception of Sweden, none of these countries will cut much of a figure in the remainder of the games.

Neither will Czecho-Slovakia, nor the Irish Free State, nor Bulgaria. Yet these countries furnished soccer teams that were in the running after those of the United States and France had been eliminated.

One reason for the truly international scope of soccer is its simplicity. It is played on a level field, the object being to kick a ball between two posts and beneath a third. Eleven men play on a side and that is about all there is to the game.

Different nations may develop different techniques; some may use their heads like feet or their feet like heads, and work up a tricky passing game, but, after all, there is the ball, and the single idea of the game is to work it down the field some way and kick it through that goal.

Probably this simplicity, more than anything else, accounts for the fact that the game is played, and played well, in every country. The Swiss could scarcely be expected to hold their own in deep-sea diving, and pole vaulting is thus far a lost art in Soviet Russia, but in every land there is some level sward and some boys and men willing to get out and kick a ball around.

* * * * * * * * *

The four countries that outlasted all others in Olympic elimination matches and came down to the final tests—Uruguay, Switzerland, Sweden and Holland—showed different styles of play, different qualifications of championship caliber.

The Swiss team was the best at the short game, dribbling and passing, feinting and at trick plays. Yet the Uruguayans wore them to a frazzle in the finals and beat them handily, 3 to 0.

Sweden's big husky team was defeated by the diminutive Swiss in the semi-final and Holland lost to Uruguay in a game which was vainly protested. Sweden then beat Holland and the final standing was:

1. Uruguay;
2. Switzerland;
3. Sweden;
4. Holland.

FULTON-GIBBONS MAY FIGHT IN ST. PAUL, REPORTED

St. Paul, June 24.—Whether or not Tom Gibbons and Fred Fulton are to meet in St. Paul next month will be known tonight.

Jack Reddy, matchmaker of the St. Paul fight club, expects to get into long distance communication with Eddie Kane, Gibbons' manager, tonight.

Kane has been on a fishing trip and is expected to return to Chicago today.

If Fulton and Gibbons are matched they will meet at Lexington Park during the last week in July.

Reddy has numerous offers for Fred Fulton to fight July 4, but is holding up until he comes to a final agreement with Kane.

MINNESOTA BASEBALL

Austin, June 24.—Austin defeated Mankato by a 4-to-2 score and kept its slate clean in the Southern Minnesota league. A home run by Phalen of the locals featured the game. Austin plays St. James a postponed game here Wednesday.

St. Cloud, June 24.—A triple tie for first place of the Central Minnesota league is the result of Sunday's games. Clear Lake suffered its first defeat of the season and was pulled down to equal footing with St. Cloud and Cold Spring won by a 6 to 2 score. St. Cloud defeated Long Prairie by a 3 to 1 score. Little Falls scored a 2 to 0 win over the Sauk Rapids-Sartell while Crosby defeated Richmond by a 6 to 0 score.

Waseca, June 24—Waseca gave Faribault a hard battle for honors, but lost out by a 6 to 4 score. St. James blanked New Richmond by a 3 to 0 score.

Winona, June 24.—Risberg pitched Rochester to a 3 to 1 victory over Winona here Sunday.

Stillwater, June 24—Reese Williams, former St. Paul pitcher, held North St. Paul to six scattered hits and Stillwater defeated the visitors by a 5 to 0 score. Williams fanned 11. The game was a regular Friendly Valley league contest.

PLUMMER WINS MANITOBA-SASK. CHAMPIONSHIP

CANADIAN SHOOTER DISTINGUISHES HIMSELF AT WINNIPEG

WAS IN CANADIAN CONTINGENT WHICH SHOT AT BREEZY POINT

C. C. Plummer, of Swan River, Manitoba, who shot so splendidly at Breezy Point Lodge on the occasion of the Minnesota State Trapshooting Tournament, breaking 100 straight one day and having other high runs, won the premier honors at the trap meet in Winnipeg, where he landed the Manitoba-Saskatchewan championship.

Mr. Plummer is a brother-in-law of Arthur Hagberg, Sr., of 624 Norwood street, and Mrs. Plummer and twins are continuing their visit with the Hagbergs.

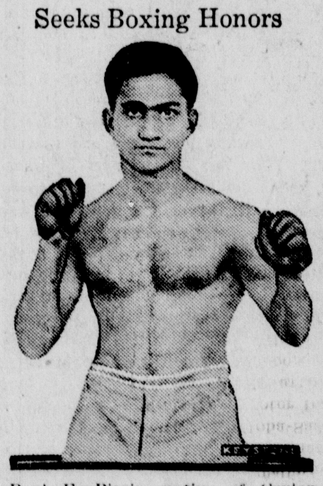

The Winnipeg Evening Tribune says in part: "Chummy" Plummer, of Swan River, is the Manitoba-Saskatchewan champion trapshooter for 1924. This "scatter gun" artist won this honor Tuesday afternoon at the second day's shooting. He did not win the title, however, until after one of the most evenly fought competitions. A shoot off with Bill Geatros, of Weyburn, and Paul Schwager, Dunburn, Sask., was required before the Swan River man finally gained the supremacy. He broke 25 straight in the shoot off. Geatros broke 24 and Schwager 23. It was a most successful close to the most successful shoot in the history of the association.

Plummer, Geatros and Schwager did some remarkable shooting during their two days pasting at the clay birds. Plummer and Schwager were tied for the lead at the termination of the morning shoot, Tuesday, with 185 birds apiece. Geatros had a chance to pick off the prize money, but only tied with the other two.

The other event on Tuesday's propram, the 21 yard handicap, went to Paul Schwager. The Dundurn shot cracked 88 birds out of 100. He was tied by E. Dickie, Minneapolis, and R. Jones professionals, but neither of these shooters was eligible for the prize.

Plummer, it may be stated, is a modest shooter. While at Breezy Point he had little to say, but at home, says his wife, he has trunks full of medals, a room full of cups, won in competitive shooting.

Seeks Boxing Honors

Paul E. Pieriz, native of Ceylon, India, and now a student at Harvard university, who is making a bid for honors in the lightweight boxing division. He has been through Cambridge university, in England, winning the collegiate title and has beaten the Oxford champ

Remarkable Echo

If the famous Menai suspension bridge is taken down, as is possible, to be replaced by something more substantial, not only will a bridge be destroyed, but also a famous echo. The sound of a hammer is repeated from each supporting crossbeam in the bridge, and finally from the opposite pier 576 feet away.—London Mail.

N. E. TIGERS, 12, S. E. PIRATES 2

FAST GAME, WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THE LAST INNING

The Southeast Brainerd Pirates were defeated by the Northeast Tigers on Monday evening by a score of 12 to 2. With the exception of the last inning, it was a fast game.

Van Walk Pitched Fine

With Van Walk pitching brilliantly, the Tigers won their first league game last night defeating the Pirates 12 to 2 at the Sixth Street grounds. The outcome of the game was never in doubt, the winners scoring five runs in the first innings. Ed Anderson, third base for the Tigers, provided a comic feature by stealing a grounder from the hands of Thorkildson, short stop, and getting his man at first. Center-fielder Johnson of the Pirates ended a Tiger rally by a pretty catch of a long fly to deep right center.
